Taskforce Australia: Three commercial observations from ProfitPulse

01

Revenue per person is exceptional. Margin per client is unknown.

At $12.8 million across 19 employees, Taskforce generates $674,000 in revenue per person, placing it among the most efficient field service businesses in Australia. But the platform coordinates more than 5,500 external tradespeople, meaning a significant share of revenue flows through to subcontractor fees. Until each manufacturer client and each real estate office is ranked by gross margin contribution and coordination cost, growth is managed by revenue alone. A Customer Concentration and Profitability Map reveals which accounts to grow, which to reprice, and which consume more than they return.

Two channels with different economics need separate financial discipline.

RentSafe manages compliance for manufacturers and real estate offices on a per-job model. RentRepair offers subscription maintenance at a fixed monthly fee. These are structurally different businesses within one entity: one is volume and frequency driven, the other is recurring revenue with customer lifetime value mechanics. A business that prices both against the same cost base will misread its margins in both directions. Understanding which channel funds growth and which consumes it is the foundational question before the next expansion phase.

Doubling agency clients signals growth. Cash timing needs matching attention.

Doubling agency clients in a year is a genuine commercial achievement. It also means more work in progress, more debtor cycles, and more subcontractor payments ahead of client settlement. As Taskforce moves into subscription billing through RentRepair, the cash conversion model changes again. A disciplined working capital review and a 13-week cash flow build are the natural next steps for a business that has outgrown its original revenue model and is building a second engine alongside the first.

These observations are offered in good faith. Taskforce Australia has built a remarkable platform. The question is simply whether the financial architecture is keeping pace with the commercial ambition.

Customer Concentration and Profitability Map

$3,950 one off | ProfitPulse verified price

A three-week project ranking every customer by revenue, gross margin contribution, and effort to serve. For Taskforce Australia, this maps both manufacturer clients and real estate agency accounts to reveal which drive the real margin after tradie fees, platform costs, and coordination effort are allocated. Output: a clear action list.
